Milestone 1
Group B
Peter keres
Michael farmer
Tyler yann

1. Procurement
   a. Procurement RFQ
      i. This is sent out to each company to see if parts are in stock/ price on stock ii. This should hold what company, parts needed, and date
   b. Procurement offer
      i. This is what is sent pack from the company on how many parts are in stock and the cost of the stock ii. This should hold what company, stock of parts on hand, cost of the stock, and date
   c. Procurement order
      i. This is the acceptance of the offer from the company and requesting the order for parts in stock ii. This should hold what company we are ordering stock from, what part, number of parts, total cost, and date d. Procurement delivery
      i. This is to see when our order has arrived and what order was it ii. This should hold the order details, expected delivery date, and if it is delivered
   e. Suppliers
      i. This is information out each supplier we do business with
      ii. This should hold name of the company, list of parts they sell, and any contact information.
2. Production
   a. Production nuit
      i. This is information about one single unit that is being made on the production floor ii. This should hold what is being made, on what line, production started, production ended, and production error.
   b. Production line
      i. This is about the each production line we have in the factory ii. This should hold employee on this line, what building number, list of reports, and what products are made
   c. Production employee
      i. This will hold information about each employee in our production part of the company ii. This should hold employee number, name, work email, production line, tell phone number, ssn,

3. Sales
    a. Sales RFQ
        i. This is a request to see if we have a pc model in stock and for what price by a customer ii. This should hold the model of pc wanting, date, what customer
    b. Sales offer
        i. This is the offer we send to the customer about how many models we have in stock and for what price ii. This should hold the model of pc wanting, date, what customer, price of model, amount of model
    c. Sales order
        i. This is the customer ordering a pc model and the price they are paying for it ii. This should hold the model of pc wanting, date, what customer, price paid, amount of model needed
    d. Sales delivery
        i. This is the us sending the pc model to the customer and when it should arrive ii. This should hold order number, customer info, date to deliver, arrived
    e. Customer
        i. This is informat about the customer
        ii. This should hold name, address, tell number, email, order history 4. Company big data
    a. Stock models
        i. This should let us know how many models we have in stock
        ii. This should hold information about the model, number in stock
    b. Stock parts
        i. This should let us know how many models we have in stock
        ii. This should hold information about the parts, number in stock
    c. Model information
        i. This should let us know what parts are needed to make what model ii. This should hold what part goes into what slot, name of models, base price of model
    d. Parts information
        i. This should let us know information about each part ii. This should hold part number, part name, part part